FIRST COMMUNITY CORPORATION ANNUAL REPORT

2016

Purpose. It's what drives us and has from the very beginning. It compels us to set goals and make decisions with the long view in mind. We celebrate our successes in the moment, but recognize their true value as invitations to reinvest in the future.

Last year rewarded and renewed that approach. The result of planned growth and strategic choices, our record-breaking performance offered countless opportunities to look ahead. Some victories helped us expand our reach into new communities, while others enabled deep investment in talent and infrastructure. In all efforts, however, we were energized by the drive, commitment and ingenuity of our customers. Their achievements remain inextricably bound to our own. And their partnership continues to inspire us.

Such is the compounding nature of success. We turn today's triumph into tomorrow's opportunity — by decision and by design.

MESSAGE FROM MIKE

Dear shareholders,

Simply put: last year was remarkable for First Community Bank.

The metrics speak for themselves — our highest ever annual and quarterly earnings, exceptional revenue, loan and pure deposit growth, which allowed us to declare the highest dividend ever paid by the bank in the first quarter of this year. Years of careful planning helped us reach new heights and achieve long-established goals. But it is the unwavering commitment of our team to honoring the First Community Bank character that makes me most proud. How we arrived at these victories matters even more than the achievements themselves.

Further safeguarding our future stability, we used these opportunities to reinvest in the bank. We added significantly to the First Community Bank team, entering the Greenville market, identifying new positions in Augusta, Ga., and adding to our executive leadership team with a key new position and expanded roles. We also determined to invest heavily in our banking technology platform to offer customers the most leading-edge financial products and services available. And, as always, we remain steadfast in our lending practices and commitment to meeting the unique needs of the business owners in the local communities we call home.

The energy from last year's successes can be felt throughout each First Community Bank location. It's an exciting time to be a part of this growth, and I am proud to share it with you.

RECORD-BREAKING NUMBERS ON EVERY FRONT

Last year, we realized First Community Bank's highest-ever earnings led by exceptionally strong organic growth in both loans and pure deposits. Net income available to shareholders was $6.7 million, an increase of 9.1 percent over 2015 earnings, and diluted earnings per share increased to $0.98, 7.7 percent higher than the previous year. Fourth quarter earnings were $1.8 million, up from $1.6 million in the same quarter of 2015, and represent an 11.9 percent increase and the highest quarterly earnings reported for First Community Bank.

Total revenue reached $35.4 million, a 3.5 percent increase over 2015. Our quarterly common share cash dividend increased to $0.09 in first quarter 2017 and represents not only the highest dividend ever paid by the bank, but 60 consecutive quarters of cash dividends paid to shareholders. We realized a 23.7 percent growth in total shareholder return in 2016, and we're exceptionally proud of a three-year return of 85.62 percent.

Foremost among our 2016 successes was remixing the asset side of our balance sheet. A strategic initiative since 2015, this remixing was the result of record loan growth — 11.8 percent, largely through the addition of the Greenville loan production office — juxtaposed with our declining securities portfolio. Our loan production last year was $164.6 million with a net loan growth of $57.5 million. The Greenville office reached $21 million in loan growth just seven months after opening the doors to its new location, and our Augusta team contributed significantly to overall numbers. Fourth quarter in particular was strong, with net loan growth of $23.3 million and a continued commitment to credit quality. As planned, our loan portfolio grew faster than deposits, allowing us to make progress in achieving our desired loan-to-earning assets mix.

And, we achieved our secondary goal of increased pure deposit growth, including customer cash management accounts — $47.2 million, an 8.1 percent hike above 2015. Our relationships across the Midlands remain mature and robust, and our downtown Lady Street location is proving to be a productive move. As always, mortgage services and First Community Financial Consultants show constancy and strength year-to-year and add depth to what we offer our customers.

Building Capacity.

COMMITMENT TO OUR INTERNAL TEAM

At its core, First Community Bank is built around relationships, with our customers and each other. Supporting an internal team, united in both its drive to understand customer needs and dedication to upholding its individual members, is perhaps one of the most vital things we do. We used the victories from last year as an opportunity to make a deep, tangible investment in the First Community Bank team.

Committed to fostering the bank's continued growth while remaining focused on process improvement, risk management and customer satisfaction, we created and filled a new role within the executive leadership team — chief operations and risk officer. With this added depth in the executive leadership group, we now are even better able to explore what a diverse, robust executive team can do when its eyes are focused on the horizon.

In March of last year, we expanded our footprint in Greenville to activate our commercial banking loan production office. This team of seasoned bankers knows the Upstate well and immediately established First Community as a local partner in the fast-growing Greenville area.

We met with success within the first few months and are positioned to further evolve First Community's profile as a local banking partner that offers its customers sound counsel and great promise.

Likewise, First Community Financial Consultants welcomed two additional financial advisors to its ranks. With significant knowledge in retirement planning and estate preservation, this dynamic team has already cultivated meaningful relationships with customers across all First Community Bank markets, guiding them through the complex process of estate and trust planning.

And, to bolster the impact of our Augusta team and meet the growth opportunities of that market head on, last year we identified key new positions within the bank and began recruiting. We believe the addition of one to two business bankers, financial planners, mortgage bankers and a new board member from that area will help us grow the next chapter of First Community's presence in the Augusta market, and ensure we are prepared to meet our customers wherever they are in their financial journey.

As we grow the First Community Bank team and expand into new markets, we're assimilating our banking cultures and styles. Yet, we remain committed to an environment of equity and a community of trust. It's an exciting time to walk together as part of this growing bank family.

Continuum of Progress.

INVESTING IN THE NEXT 20 YEARS

The rate at which technology changes is mind-boggling. Yet the products and services financial institutions can now offer customers are equally astonishing. We've been planning a major investment in our infrastructure for several years, but waiting for the exact right moment to act. Last year's positive momentum afforded us just such an occasion.

First Community Bank's core system processor empowers our entire banking system. Very simply: it's the software that carries out the bank's work. To provide advanced products and services while delivering ever more personalized customer service, we're converting to a new core processor to meet the expanding needs of our customers. This new smart technology will yield significantly more sophisticated products and user-friendly customer applications. From enhanced mobile banking to an upgraded online platform, it will put more control in our customers' hands. And, it provides the bank what we need behind the scenes to increase efficiency, enhance internal workflow and streamline our processing. It's just one of the ways we will steward the greatest possible long-term benefit for our customers and shareholders alike.

Already in 2017, we've begun internal training for this core processor conversion, which will occur in phases throughout the year. It's going well, and we're excited to introduce our customers to improved features and benefits as they come online.

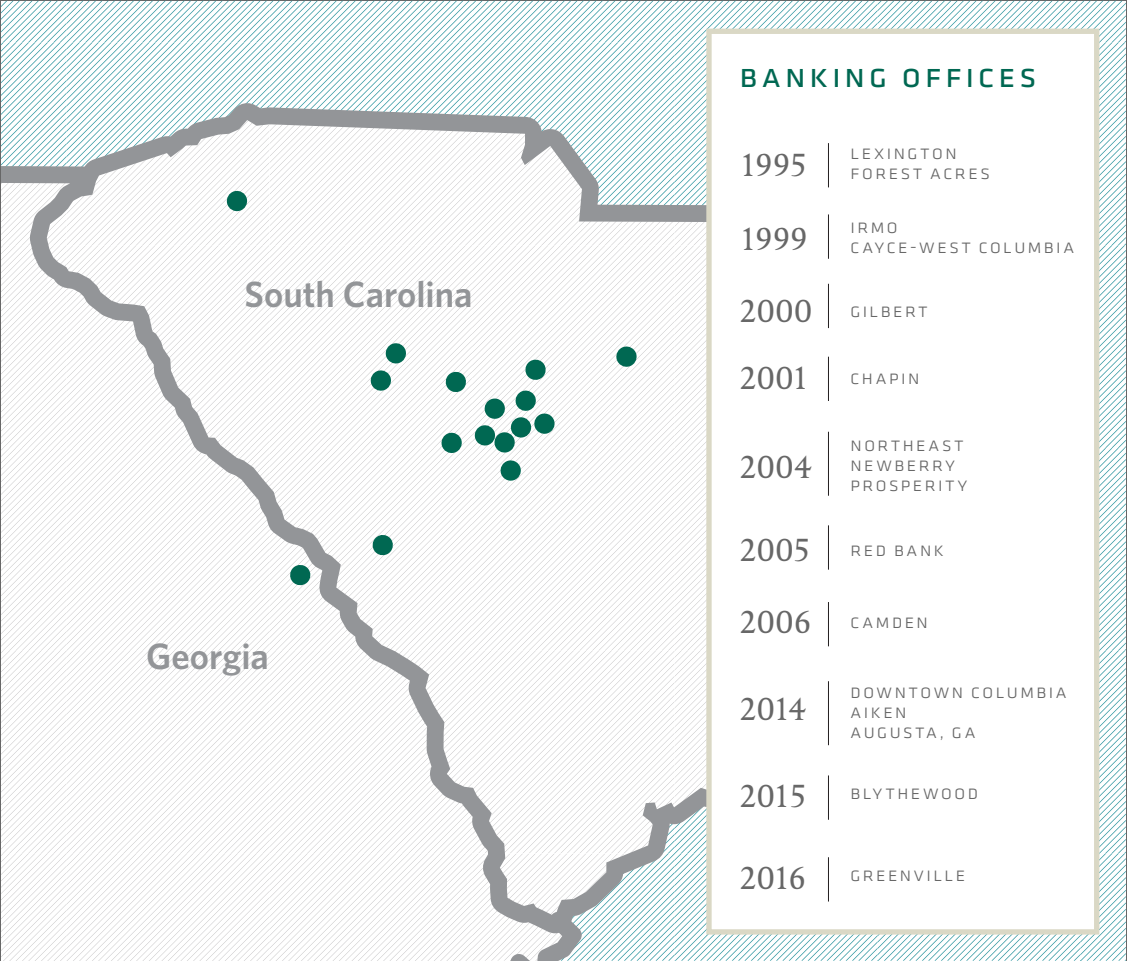

Converting to a new core processor is a significant investment, but one that will allow us to innovate and deliver the most meaningful products and services to our customers long into the future.

Momentum. You can feel it throughout First Community Bank. As the successes from 2016 carry us into this year, we know even greater things are coming.

There is shared excitement for who we are becoming and a contagious, positive energy surrounding our measured growth and how it fuels tomorrow's opportunities. Yet, through it all, our touchstone remains our customers and the communities we serve. We are, and always will be, a local bank for local business owners.

We walk forward with these partners. And as we approach the billion-dollar asset threshold, we stand prepared and ready.

Certain financial information presented above is determined by methods other than in accordance with GAAP. These non-GAAP financial measures include "efficiency ratio," "tangible book value at period end," "return on average tangible common equity" and "tangible common shareholders' equity to tangible assets." The "efficiency ratio" is defined as non-interest expense, divided by the sum of net interest income on a tax equivalent basis and non-interest income, net of any securities gains or losses and OTTI on securities. Non-interest income for the calculation of efficiency ratio excludes OTTI on securities of $200 thousand in 2012. The efficiency ratio is a measure of the relationship between operating expenses and earnings. "Tangible book value at period end" is defined as total equity reduced by recorded intangible assets divided by total common shares outstanding. "Tangible common shareholders' equity to tangible assets" is defined as total common equity reduced by recorded intangible assets divided by total assets reduced by recorded intangible assets. Our management believes that these non-GAAP measures are useful because they enhance the ability of investors and management to evaluate and compare our operating results from period-to-period in a meaningful manner. Non-GAAP measures have limitations as analytical tools, and investors should not consider them in isolation or as a substitute for analysis of the Company's results as reported under GAAP.

The future dividend policy of the company is subject to the discretion of the board of directors and will depend upon a number of factors, including future earnings, financial condition, cash requirements and general business conditions. These forward-looking statements are based on our current expectations and actual results could differ materially from the results anticipated by our forward-looking statements. There are a number of factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those indicated by such forward-looking statements. These factors include, without limitation, (1) competitive pressures among depository and other financial institutions may increase and have an effect on pricing, spending, third-party relationships and revenues; (2) the strength of the United States economy in general and the strength of the local economies in which we conduct operations may be different than expected resulting in, among other things, a deterioration in the credit quality or a reduced demand for credit, including the resultant effect on the company’s loan portfolio and allowance for loan losses; (3) the rate of delinquencies and amounts of charge-offs, the level of allowance for loan loss, the rates of loan growth, or adverse changes in asset quality in our loan portfolio, which may result in increased credit risk-related losses and expenses; (4) changes in the U.S. legal and regulatory framework; (5) adverse conditions in the stock market, the public debt markets and other capital markets (including changes in interest rate conditions) could have a negative impact on the Company; (6) technology and cybersecurity risks, including potential business disruptions, reputational risks, and financial losses, associated with potential attacks on or failures by our computer systems and computer systems of our vendors and other third parties; and (7) negative developments in connection with the risks detailed in our filings with the SEC. Investors should read the risk factors set forth in our most recent Form 10-K and other periodic reports filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.
